$250,000 awarded to scholarship winners for 2016-2017
By CDR Jack Evans, SC, USN (Ret.), Chief Staff Officer

Fifty-six students, including children and grandchildren of Supply Corps officers and supply enlisted personnel, were awarded Navy Supply Corps Foundation scholarships for the 2016-2017 academic year. Since 1971, the Foundation has awarded 2,328 scholarships valued in excess of $5,252,000.

The board included CAPT Ken Epps, SC, USN (Active Duty chair); CAPT Mike Plunkett, SC, USN (Ret.) (Retired chair); CAPT James Shelton, SC, USN (Reserve chair); CMC James Collins USN (Ret.) (Senior Enlisted chair); and Mrs. Amiee Warner (Spouse’s chair). CDR Jack Evans, SC, USN (Ret.) (NSCF Chief Staff Officer) served as the recorder.

Again this year the scholarship applications were uploaded to a secure website making them available for each board member to review and grade from home. The selection board convened virtually in March and then met as a group on 9 April in Atlanta. The 116 applicants were ranked on scholastic ability, character, leadership, and financial need. The names of the scholarship winners will be announced in the next Oakleaf.

Chapter, Volunteer of the Year and DA nominations due
By CAPT Pete Eltringham, SC, USN (Ret.), Recognition Committee Chair

A hero is someone who has given of his or her life to something bigger than oneself.

-Joseph Campbell

Navy Supply Corps Foundation heroes are out there. Please help find them and ensure they are recognized for their outstanding work. There are three NSCF national recognition programs and nominations are open to all. Nominations are “open format” and must be received no later than August 1 by letter or email to CDR (Ret.) Jack Evans at CSO@usnscf.com. Award selections will be made at the fall Foundation Board of Directors meeting.

Distinguished Alumni - The Distinguished Alumni Program is one of the NSCF hallmark programs. Its primary purpose is to recognize members of the Supply Corps who have made significant contributions to the profession.

Thoughts from the Chairman

Busy days for your Foundation

Your Foundation has been busy! We are only half-way through 2016 and the Foundation has been engaged in a multitude of different areas.

The hallmark event, the selection of the Foundation scholarships, was completed under the direction of the Scholarship Committee chair, CAPT Ken Epps. All the candidates were outstanding, so the committee had to make some tough decisions. In the end 56 students were selected to receive Foundation scholarships and 31 previous recipients of multi-year scholarships were reaffirmed for a total of $250,000 in scholarships. Watch the Foundation website www.usnscf.com for their video selfies, where the students tell us why their scholarship is important to them.

The long-anticipated second Oakleaf cruise was a resounding success. We had 161 cruisers who enjoyed every moment of the trip from Amsterdam, Netherlands, to Basel, Switzerland. Throughout the eight days, in between the tours and river cruising, the passageways, lounge, sun deck and dining room echoed with sea stories, greetings among long ago shipmates and introductions of newly introduced friends. Everyone agreed it was an outstanding trip and plans were already being made to join the next cruise in 2018. The best outcome was the $38,200 contributed by the cruisers to the Foundation’s scholarship fund. If you were not able to participate this year, we hope you will join us in 2018. As you can see on page 5 we want to know where you would like to travel. Planning will begin soon for the 2018 adventure. Take this opportunity to let us know.

The update of the Strategic Plan under the leadership of Foundation Vice Chair, CAPT (Ret.) Kurt Libby, is progressing. Please take the time to read his update. I also encourage you to read the new features that introduce you to a Board member and share a Distinguished Alumni’s thoughts on leadership. CAPT Libby and CAPT (Ret.) Bud Schiff are kicking off these two articles, respectively.

The Spring 2016 Board of Directors meeting was held in Newport, RI. In addition to a full agenda, we had a tour of the schoolhouse and inducted the Foundation’s 51st Distinguished Alumni, Mr. Scott Wine, Chairman and CEO Polaris Industries Inc.

The remainder of 2016 will be equally busy as we work hard to complete the update of the Strategic Plan and continue to develop the new Family Aid and Support Team (FAST) Program.

If you have any thoughts about how the Foundation can better serve you or you would like to provide your expertise in a specific support area, you can reach me at FoundationChair@usnscf.com. I welcome your comments and look forward to hearing from you.

RADM Linda Bird, SC, USN (Ret.)
Scott Wine, Chairman and CEO of Polaris Industries, was formally made a Distinguished Alumnus of the Supply Corps School in a ceremony held in Newport in May. Recognition as a Distinguished Alumnus is conferred by the Navy Supply Corps Foundation upon “retired and former Navy Supply Corps officers who have distinguished themselves by obtaining significant success in the public or private sector, who credit their Supply Corps experience as a basic foundation of further professional achievements.”

Wine, a 1989 graduate of the Naval Academy, served as a Supply Corps officer until 1996, including service aboard the USS Lewis B. Puller. He became CEO of Polaris, a market leader in off-road vehicles, snowmobiles, motorcycles and on-road electric/hybrid powered vehicles in 2008 after serving as President of Fire Safety Americas, a division of United Technologies.

He holds an MBA from the University of Maryland and serves on the boards of US Bancorp, Terex Corporation and the Greater Twin Cities United Way.

Becoming a Navy Supply Corps officer was the perfect entry-level job for me - a pivotal experience that greatly shaped my life.

After Supply Corps School in Athens, Ga., I was assigned aboard the USS Berkeley (DDG 15), including three combat tours in the Gulf of Tonkin off the North Vietnamese coast.

Serving on board a ship at sea was the most grueling job I ever had - intense and exhausting. We worked all day, seven days a week. Sleep deprivation was routine.

As a brand new ensign, I needed a lot of help and working with experienced and motivated Chiefs and Petty Officers I could rely on was essential.

After being released from active duty, I remained an active participant in the Ready Reserves for another 20+ years while forging a successful career in the life insurance and financial services industries.

I’m still amazed at how much responsibility the Navy gives a junior officer. A taste for business wasn’t all I took with me when I left active duty after two years. The leadership and management lessons, skills and experiences I gained, and the magnitude of responsibilities I assumed would never have been available.

CAPT Kurt Libby, SC, USN (Ret.), Vice Chair

As President of the Bay Area Chapter for the past six years and now Vice Chair of the Foundation Board, retired Supply Corps CAPT (Ret.) Kurt Libby wears several hats. In addition to serving as Vice Chair, he is also Chair of the Foundation Governance Committee, overseeing the updating of the strategic plan, currently underway, as well as the Foundation bylaws and the nominating committee.

A 1966 graduate of the University of Minnesota, Libby was a member of the Navy Supply Corps School class of ’67. During his career, he served in numerous afloat and ashore assignments, including a tour in Vietnam, and earned a masters degree from the Naval Postgraduate School. His final tour was as Commanding Officer, Naval Supply Center Oakland.

Retired from the Navy for more than twenty years, Libby has stayed active and involved, initially doing consulting assignments and, until two years ago, putting his logistics skills to work as a purchasing manager for the University of California, Berkeley. Kurt and his wife Janet, who have two grown children, live in Alameda Calif.

But his heart was always with the Navy. “I loved the Supply Corps, the camaraderie and the idea that you could go to a Supply Corps gathering anywhere and still have that connection,” he said. It’s difficult to maintain that relationship after leaving active duty, he added, and that’s why he is such a strong supporter of the work of the Foundation, “which helps keep that connection alive. We have lifelong friendships and this organization is an investment in the rest of our lives.”

Libby got involved in his local chapter and then the Foundation Board for a simple reason, he said. “I know that non profits exist on volunteer support. If we’ve gotten a lot out, we’ve got to give back.”

When he’s not busy giving back, Kurt and his wife love to travel. He plays golf a couple of times a week, although “I’m not getting any better!” he says with a laugh. The couple enjoys bike riding, and especially biking the Bay Area trail. It is 500 miles long, he said, and “it’s all flat!”

CAPT Libby can be reached at ViceChair@usnscf.com.

Chapter, Volunteer of the Year and DA nominations due

Volunteer of the Year Award - Each chapter should select a high impact Volunteer of the Year (Active/Reserve/Civil Service/Retired/Former) and forward a recommendation for consideration. Chapter Presidents are encouraged to oversee nomination of the best volunteer in their chapter. That said, nominations are open to all NSCF members and will be considered.

Chapter of the Year Award – The greatest strengths of our Foundation are the outstanding programs initiated by each chapter to further the mission of the Foundation. Your chapter is eligible for national recognition and special resources. All that is required is a brief, open format run-down of the chapter’s programs and their impact, both in the NSCF mission overall as well as in the local community.
Strategic Plan update: Focus on taking care of ourselves and others

By CAPT Kurt Libby, SC, USN (Ret.), Foundation Vice Chairman

We are continuing along our strategic plan update path. Committee chairs have reviewed the goals of the existing strategic plan and updated them. This month the committee chairs incorporated the comments from last year’s survey and made additional refinements to the revised strategic plan. The comments from the survey were heavily weighted toward the mission of “taking care of our own.” There were two primary subsets: taking care of others and taking care of ourselves.

In the latter category are comments regarding career guidance and transition. They range from mentoring, job advice, duty station choices, and spouse employment assistance to career transition and subsequent civilian job placement. This committee was a major concern because it was the primary interest area for survey responders, but we didn’t have a committee chair. I am thrilled to announce that CDR (Ret.) Bill Boucek has agreed to take on this very important chairmanship. Bill is the perfect person for the job because he has unlimited enthusiasm and drive, and also because he is currently going through the career transition process himself.

In the “taking care of others” category, the survey responders were very concerned about filling the gaps left by other Navy programs for helping families of deceased members. They want to make sure that not only are the current needs met, but that there is an effort made to continually embrace these families in the Supply Corps community. The other “taking care of others” concern was to continue offering scholarships to as wide a group of supply community recipients as possible.

The next step in the update process will be to gather all of the committee chairs and selected other interested parties in a group meeting. The output will be a final draft to be presented to the Chapter Presidents and Board of Directors at the fall 2016 meeting.

Let us know where you’d like to travel in 2018

In April, 161 cruisers joined in on the second successful Oakleaf river cruise, along the Rhine from Amsterdam, Netherlands, to Basel, Switzerland. In addition to sharing sea stories, greeting long lost shipmates and meeting new friends, cruisers contributed $38,200 to the Foundation Scholarship Fund. Here are three photos…look for more at www.usnsacf.com.

Think you might want to travel with members of the Foundation in the future? Have ideas on trips you’d like to see? Send an email with your thoughts to Cindy Inglett at Foundationadmin@usnsacf.com and your ideas will be added into the mix for the 2018 trip.
Chapter resources include website, monthly phone calls and more

By CAPT Bill Fenick, USN (Ret.), Chapter Relations Chair

Wondering where to find information about the Foundation and your chapter? Here are some of the significant resources available to help you.

The Foundation website at www.usnscf.com is your source not only for information about the Foundation but also for all necessary chapter information. Go to “About Us” and “Chapter Information” to find the following:

- Foundation brochure describing who we are and what we do for your use for chapter events.
- Display panels that can be printed and mounted for any event you host
- Recommended By-Laws for those interested in starting a chapter.
- Chapter Operations Manual, a good guide to run a chapter.
- Chapter Web Administrators Manual, our strongest tool.

- Foundation/Chapter Brief Template, our branded format for presentation.
- Also on this page is the list of individual emails for the Chapter Presidents. If you need to reach all the Presidents, use the All Presidents link to send an email to all.
- In addition, under “About Us” click on “Logos” and your chapter name to retrieve an assortment of custom logos for your use as well as a template for chapter stationery.

The process for the Community Values and Traditions (CVT) program has been tweaked. Requests for CVT funds should be directed to me at ChapterRelations@usnscf.com for immediate approval or review by Foundation leadership. This is your opportunity to create a chapter family event in your region with the direct support of the Foundation.

Welcome aboard to the Twin Cities Chapter; Guam and the Tri-State region chapters are in development as well. Thank you all!

Passing of Distinguished Alumnus Roger Enrico

Distinguished Alumnus and former PepsiCo CEO Roger Enrico, died June 2, 2016. Upon graduating from Navy Supply Corps School-Athens in 1967, he volunteered for a tour in Vietnam and was sent to Da Nang. He later served in the USS Little Rock (CL 92), the Sixth Fleet Flagship.

He joined PepsiCo (Pepsi-Cola/Frito-Lay) in 1971, shortly after leaving the Navy and retired from there in 2001. He held a number of senior level management positions within that organization, including Chairman and Chief Executive Officer.

Enrico said “I have always believed that my Supply Corps experience was critical to my success in business and in life.”

Making the not so social media work for families
By Karren Polowczyk

Twitter allows you to have 140 characters. The U.S. Navy family gram allowed 50! Can you imagine being the newly wed spouse of a submariner on your first deployment, living 3,000+ miles away from your family and only communicating six times a deployment with your new husband? Oh and this 50 words included their name and rank! You couldn’t ask questions or give any bad news, it was a one-way conversation! These family grams weren’t very private either – the radiomen saw all of them and they might even be reviewed by the Captain before your husband saw it.

That was 1988 and we were living in beautiful Hawaii. John was stationed on the USS Queenfish (SSN 651). Our dog was caged at a state quarantine station for 120 days. I’m pretty sure every family gram was the same……X number of days left in quarantine, the sun is shining, I went to the beach, I miss you, love Karren. That is 21 words so you get the idea. Early on the information might have been exciting like:

I moved into our house, we have an address, or our household goods came or the car arrived. There was never a family gram like the one you really wanted to send…..

The house is full of ants and there is gecko poop all over the place. Your mother won’t stop asking when you’ll be home and the insurance company won’t leave me alone about that accident you had before you deployed! I can’t find a job. The car won’t start again. The dog ran away. Your brother will meet you at the pier; he’ll be here for a month!

I had to figure it out and I had to make it work. So in this instant world of social media, face time, and Skype where the deployed spouse knows instantly what is going on before you tell him I’m thinking those family grams weren’t so bad after all!

Karren Polowczyk is married to Rear Admiral John Polowczyk (OPNAV, N41) who is a geographical bachelor while she lives in Virginia Beach with her children and three schnauzers. They will celebrate their 29th wedding anniversary in August.

What my service meant to me

I learned how to interact with a variety of people – from brilliant and inspirational leaders, who quickly became role-models for me, to some who weren’t so effective. I vividly remember those whom I admired, and I remember many of the others too, and learned from them as well.

I tell executives to rely on their first-level managers; to set an example themselves; and to praise in public when someone has done a good job. All these are standard operating procedure in the Navy, but they’re a rarity in the business world.

I’m still guided by the lessons I learned during my formative Navy years. I gave the Navy two full years of active duty and 20 more part-time Reserve years. What the Navy gave me is immeasurable.

When new officers are installed, be sure to send the president’s name and email address to ChapterRelations@usnscf.com.
This time I am writing about a moment in my career. When reading about Fat Leonard in the news and the embarrassing career crash of another Navy officer, it turns my stomach. I hope it is the same with you. It brought back memories.

It seems like officer leadership on nuclear carriers in WestPac were particularly targeted for embarrassment as Glenn Defense Marine dishonestly performed husbanding services for U.S. Navy ships. Supply officers afloat know that when they buy port services, anything that can be counted can be corrupted.

It was October 1962 when the first nuclear powered aircraft carrier made its first deployment and visited its first foreign port and met its first husbanding agent. The carrier was the USS Enterprise (CVA(N) 65). The husbanding agent was LT McKinnon.

In the summer of 1961 my wife and I arrived in Italy where I was to become part of Naval Support Activity, Naples and Navy’s Purchasing Officer in the Mediterranean. There was a Navy Purchasing Office in London but my small office of five had the task for the Med. We stayed in a “pensione” along with another incoming Supply Corps officer, Bob Frampton, and an outgoing Line lieutenant in route to our Supply Corps School. John Ruehlin. I hope they are both smiling.

After eleven months buying ship supplies, port services, boat repair, food, even conducting scrap metal sales in Sicily, CAPT Ray Cope asked if I would like to move north to Pisa. I would relieve LT Larry Krukin at the Italian airport in an assignment with the United Nations providing US Army support to UN forces in the Gaza Strip. I would work for a civilian, get a letter fitness report, and no doubt remain a lieutenant. I said yes. When pointing out that an officer could not get two sets of orders in one fiscal year without a “SecNav Finding,” I was told not to worry. The household goods contractor was one of my guys, and he would be happy to move property of the “tenente” and get paid someday when orders came through. I was off to Pisa with 10 days in-route admiring the beauty of Switzerland. Without orders, no need to hurry.
Good sea stories never end. Twelve years later RADM Wally Dowd as the 32nd Chief and CDR McKinnon as EA were rushed to the Med by Admiral “Ike” Kidd at the outbreak of the Yom Kippur War to “support the Sixth Fleet as necessary.” The Soviets were threatening intervention at the battle for the Golan Heights, all ships were ordered to assemble off Crete, Sailors on leave in Europe were told to head for Souda Bay, and a supply line was established between Norfolk and a small air field where NAF Sigonella had a detachment. Although it did not work for Wally, he ordered the Navy Cargo Handling and Port Group at Williamsburg to head with its cargo handlers to Crete. LT Jim Jaudon at NAVSUP’s regional contracting office in Naples, that Wally had established three years before, was ordered to Athens, Greece, with a pad of purchase orders. Our job became setting up an instant base.

Wally took charge and established a war room. Available Navy assets were inventoried and a list made of what would be needed to handle incoming cargo and passengers. It was trucks, aircraft refuelers, forklifts, buses, etc. We would set up the operation from what was available on the Athens market. I read the list by phone to LT Jaudon. His purchase orders and my NAVSUP accounting data did the trick. Jim asked how he was to get the vehicles to Crete. I said rent a ferry. He did. With Supply Corps LT Paulino Contraras, who spoke several languages as Jim’s partner, equipment was rolling off ferries at the small port of Souda the next day. We no doubt made a lot of happy Greek truck drivers wealthy.

Before heading home we stopped by La Madalena on Sardinia to see a submarine tender that had just arrived. Hearing how hard it was for cargo to get to Sardinia (and families to get to the Italian mainland for vacation) Wally set up ferry service between Civitavecchia and La Madalena. Again I provided the accounting data.

Good sea stories never end. Neither do career lessons.

As CO NSD Subic I set up ferry-like service between Subic and Diego Garcia, and as COMNAVSUP established a regional contracting center in Singapore. Called a “non-base base,” again it was just a bunch of Supply Corps officers with pads of purchase orders in their hands.

First afterthought. I was SUPPO of the USS Princeton when in the fall of 1968 we were ordered from the coast of Vietnam to Singapore for R&R and to test the capabilities of a new commercial dockyard that had been carved out of HMS Terror, a British base that was closing. Two officers from CTF 73’s Detachment Foxtrot came on board to develop the work package. They were in civilian clothes. I chewed them out shouting, “This is a war ship.” What goes around comes around.

Second afterthought. Buying things on the waterfronts of Italy was a lesson of never hanging out with contractors, taking meals or favors, and staying away from photo ops. I don’t know what those carrier officers were thinking, and I suspect one former CNO is sorry to have seen his picture in the papers with a fat guy now in jail. As we say in Missouri, “Don’t do stupid.”

This time I had to tell a story because no one else would. Send yours to Themckinons@aol.com
Career Transition:
Improving leadership skills through education

By CAPT Ted Digges, SC, USN (Ret.)
Executive Director, The American College’s Penn Mutual Center for Veterans Affairs

In 2012, Navy public affairs reservist LT Tia Nichole McMillen was awarded a full scholarship to attend the American College of Financial Services, located outside Philadelphia. McMillen, whose day job is as a strategic communication planner with NAVSUP, was motivated by a desire to improve her leadership skills. She learned about the American College and its scholarship program for veterans when writing a speech for the Chief of Supply Corps to deliver there on the anniversary of September 11. “When I saw how the college cared for our veterans and their families, I knew it was a community I wanted to join,” she said.

McMillen, a graduate of Messiah College who holds a Master of Science degree in business and organizational communication from Northeastern, completed the Master in Management (MSM) program at the American College with an emphasis on leadership in 2013. As affiliated faculty at both Messiah College and Elizabethtown College, she credits the program, with its emphasis on working in small teams, with helping her learn to create “a safe, productive environment in which a team can thrive. The American College taught me many things,” she said, “but the most important was how to be a valuable team member.”

In addition to the highly accredited MSM program, the American College specializes in educating professionals who are either in or want to begin a career as a financial services professional. Anyone considering taking advantage of this opportunity offered to active duty, veterans and their spouses may contact me at Ted.Digges@theamericancollege.edu or check out the website at veterans.theamericancollege.edu.

Patuxent River Chapter members reach out to local homeless vets

By LT Dave Fischer

Giving back in big ways has become a recurring theme for the Navy Supply Corps Foundation Patuxent River Chapter. Its most recent initiative, led by LTs CJ Gallagher and Patrick Coughlin, was to find more ways of supporting the homeless population of greater Southern Maryland – specifically Southern Maryland’s homeless veterans.

The Three Oaks Center in Lexington Park, Md., has been on a mission since 1996 to assist the homeless population with housing, meals, and tools to promote self-sufficiency. Partnering with Three Oaks Center, LTs Gallagher and Coughlin have added the chapter’s considerable talent and abilities to the cause. The center was recently awarded an $80,000 Maryland state grant to procure a new modular building and $140,000 on an annual recurring basis from St. Mary’s County. Slated for completion in June, this facility will provide additional crisis beds, a computer lab, VA office, and staff offices for counselors to provide support to an additional 170 patrons annually.

On Saturday April 30th twenty chapter volunteers turned out to build the landscaping, move in all the donated furniture and construct a vegetable garden for the center. “The turnout by chapter members and families was outstanding and we were able to finish the build day ahead of schedule,” said LT Coughlin. “This really was a community effort with additional volunteers from Booze Allen Hamilton, the Three Oaks Center, and Mission BBQ who also catered the build.”

The chapter plans on continuing its involvement with the center by volunteering to teach resume writing, conducting mock interviews, and providing support to the center’s administrators.

Montel Williams speaks at Washington DC chapter event

By LT Jesse V. Julao, SC, USN

Montel Williams spoke at the Washington DC Chapter Supply Corps Birthday Ball, energizing the crowd as he spoke about his military experience in the Marines Corps and Navy, his rise to fame by becoming a television personality, and more importantly his dedicated role in helping other military veterans. Mr. Williams urged the crowd to get more involved in veteran affairs and to “take care of our brothers and sisters no longer in uniform.” He emphasized militarylogisticians would be the ones to get that job done right.
Looking for a lost shipmate?

Every day the Foundation receives requests from members who want to renew connections with shipmates. The Foundation makes every effort to help point members in the right direction. However, those who are not listed in the database are “missing.” Here is a recent list of shipmates members are trying to locate. If you see your name and want to reach out, contact Cindy Inglett at the Foundation office at Foundationadmin@usnscf.com or (706)354 4111.

To the Editor:

I love this new book, “Ready for Sea.” Part of the reason why is that I decided to reach out to a dozen of the knuckleheads I remember by sending them a copy of this book. Maybe you think this is a good deed I did for them but guess what...it was the other way around.

I got back in the mail some of the most touching letters and notes...we made connections again after all these years. So as usual, I got back much more than I gave. You may want to try it.

It wasn’t a brilliant idea but man did it work!

CAPT (Ret.) Len Sapera

Scholarship Recipients: Send us your video and receive $100!

We’d love to hear how your scholarship has made a difference for you. Send us a video selfie (60 seconds or less) describing how you felt getting this help. If your video is accepted, we’ll send you a check for $100 and a thumbdrive to store some of your data.

Your video must include your name, home town, school you will be attending, and name of Supply Corps sponsor, and an expression of how the scholarship has made a difference for you.

Creativity is encouraged!

Submissions should be emailed to TheOakleaf@comcast.net. Entries will be posted online at www.usnscf.com.

$250,000 awarded to scholarship winners for 2016-2017

of the applicants were redacted on the application in order to remove any bias in the selection process.

The 56 scholarships awarded were worth $132,500. This is in addition to 31 scholarships valued at $117,500 that were awarded previously as multiyear awards. Total scholarship awards for this year total $250,000. Of the total scholarships awarded, 14 were multi-year scholarships while 42 were single-year scholarships. Of the 56 recipients selected this year, 27 are currently attending college and 29 will be entering college or university for the first time.

There were no applications received from spouses returning to school full or part time, or from students wishing to attend a community college or trade school. Of concern as well was the continued drop in the number of applications received from children of the supply enlisted community.

The Foundation will also fund $10,000 four year memorial scholarships for the children of Supply Corps officers who died while on active duty.

Next year’s applications will be available on the Foundation website at www.usnscf.com after December 20, 2016.

Editor’s Note: Scholarship recipients, the name of their scholarship, school they will be attending, their sponsor, and hometown are listed below. As we go to press some students have not notified us of their chosen school. Watch the website at www.usnscf.com for the complete listing:
