chairman of the two-part forum, themed, "Challenging Insurance Problems of Tomorrow."

Purpose of the forum is to present a realistic view of challenges the insurance industry must face during the next ten years. Significant trends and developments will be presented by a team of speakers vitally caught up in the current and future climate of insurance.

Jerome Lederer, managing director, Flight Safety Foundation, will present "The Challenge of High Speed Transportation." Presently a member of the Presidential Task Force on National Aviation Goals, Mr. Lederer is also chairman, Aviation and Airport Divisions, National Fire Protection Association.

William H. Berry, vice president, America Fore Loyalty Group, will discuss "The Challenge of Risks of Great Magnitude." Mr. Berry is chairman of the Executive Committee of the Factory Insurance Association and the Nuclear Clause Committee of the Inter-Regional Insurance Conference. He is a member of the committee on Commercial Uses of Atomic Energy of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Edgar E. Isaacs, executive vice president, Continental Casualty Company, will present "The Challenge of Risks of Inferior Quality." Mr. Isaacs supports his subject with a broad background of casualty operations experience.

H. Clay Johnson, executive vice president, Royal Globe Insurance
